EMILY CARR'S VISION OF B.C. FOREST AND NATIVE INDIAN

To appreciate fully Emily Carr's unique vision of the Br. Columbia landscape, one must focus on her involvement in esoteric religions, her experimentation with oil-on-paper medium, her meeting with Georgia O'Keefe, Mark Tobey, the Group of Seven and other influences. Her predecessors, those artists who accompanied James Cook to the west coast of Br. North America, and those of the 19th century, as well as her contemporaries, the early impressionists, and the followers of the American School, all painted the B.C. landscape as they saw it. However, present-day artists, G. Smith, J. Kroener, J. Shadbolt worked in the shadow of Emily Carr and have taken her vision of the forest and native Indians a stage further.

An authority on the B.C. landscape, Dr. Maria Tippet is a world-wide lecturer, teacher, writer and art curator. She obtained her Ph.D. from U. College, London U. and has taught Can. history, Can. art, Can. studies at U.B.C., Simon Fraser and York Universities. In 1978 she won the B.C. Eaton Book Award for From Desolation to Splendor: Changing Perceptions of the B.C. Landscape. In 1979 her work, Emily Carr, a biography, won the Sir John A. Macdonald Prize and the Governor General's Award. Lack of space prevents the mention of other prizes. In 1984, Art at the Service of War was published and in the field of fiction, Breaking the Cycle and Other Stories from a Gulf Island was recently released to be followed in 1991 by The History of Canadian Women Artists. She curated a Can. art exhibition which is now touring Canada.

Dr. Maria Tippet will give a slide illustrated presentation about The B.C. Landscape, Emily Carr's Vision of B.C. Forest and Native Indian.

Pour apprécier pleinement le caractère unique des paysages de Colombie-britannique peints par Emily Carr, il faut connaître son intérêt pour les religions ésotériques, ses expériences avec les huiles sur papier, ses rencontres avec Georgia O'Keefe, Mark Tobey, le Groupe des Sept, etc. Ses prédécesseurs, ceux du 19<sup>e</sup> siècle, ses contemporains, les disciples de l'école américaine, tous ont peint le paysage de C.-B. tel qu'ils l'ont vu. Cependant, de nos jours, des artistes tels que G. Smith, J. Kroener et J. Shadbolt se sont inspirés d'Emily Carr et ont poussé sa recherche encore plus loin.

Le Dr Maria Tippet est une autorité en matière de peinture de paysages de C.-B., une conférencière, écrivaine et conservatrice mondialement connue. En 1979, son livre Emily Carr, a biography, lui a valu le prix Sir John A. Macdonald et le prix du Gouverneur Général. Le Dr Maria Tippet fera un exposé illustré de diapositives sur le paysage de C.-B. et la vision d'Emily Carr de la forêt colombienne et des Amérindiens.

FIRST OF A TWO-PART SERIES ON CANADIAN HUMOUR

NEWFOUNDLAND HUMOUR

A native of Newfoundland, Ray Guy's name is synonymous with humour, "but what makes his humour special is its edge of scepticism, its tempered cynicism, its remarkable compassion. He understands how the world works and how his fellow Newfoundlanders fit into it."

A graduate of journalism from Memorial U. (Nfld.) and Ryerson Institute (Toronto), Ray Guy is a free lance writer, author and playwright. He has won a national newspaper award, two national magazines awards, and the Newfoundland Arts Council award. In 1975 he received the Leacock Medal for humour and was elected to the Canadian News Hall of Fame in 1984.

Ray Guy's love for his country and pride in its past are contagious. He strips the garb of artificial respectability and superiority from some of those who have been set in authority over us and uses a yardstick different from the ordinary to take measures of men, and different criteria to judge the value of a way of life.

In one political satire, High Places, Guy asks, "Have you ever wondered what goes on in high places?...a brief glimpse into... Conglomeration Bldg....stand at the elbows of giants who direct Newfoundland's destiny. A group of men, thin on top, large around the middle, sit around a huge table...all extremely scared. It is neither desperation nor indigestion that causes them to look pasty-but the affairs of state weighing heavily on them." The title of one short political satire is Our Politicians Plunder. We Like Them That Way. The opening sentence states, "A St. John's radio chat show recently ran a poll, on the status of politicians in local society. I believe they ran a notch ahead of child molesters, but gave considerable ground to grave robbers...We prefer them that way...In Newfoundland... the land of the rising scum, a politician is someone who, once all his relatives have been sated, shares some of his plunder... with his constituents."

Not all the darts are aimed at politicians-Guy sheds new light in many corners, as the titles suggest - Why Children Should Be Seen And Not Heard - If B.C.'s So Perfect, How Come There Aren't More Newfoundlanders There? - Dealing With Dialects - The Devil And His Railway.

Ray Guy will narrate his favourite tales from his works - That Far Greater Bay - You May Know Them As Sea Urchins, Ma'am and his latest publication, Ray Guy's Best.
